

Finding Success with T&S:

Whole Foods

In a supermarket with large (and renowned) fresh and prepared foods areas, the back-of-house work areas can take a beating. Keeping them clean is a heavy-duty job. That's where T&S Brass comes in.

Nearly 100 Whole Foods Market locations across the U.S. have recently installed T&S Brass hose reels to make cleaning easy and reliable.

This sturdy T&S washdown solution was recommended by a prominent plumbing contractor in New England, who selected the hose reels because of their heavy-duty quality and ease of installation.

T&S hose reels include several design features that support long-lasting durability, even under harsh conditions or heavy use.

- Heavy-duty construction, including 3/16" drum supports and rolled edges for added strength
- Brass swivel on stainless steel shaft eliminates friction that can lead to welding and splitting
- Nitrile tube hose with reinforced steel wire braid is more durable than typical rubber and prevents kinking
- Anti-lockout ratchet design allows the hose to retract freely even when fully extended
- Protected hose outlet allows free movement in any direction, extending the life of the hose
- Mounting bases are engineered with extra holes and slots to make installation fast and easy, and the EasyInstall wall-mount bracket can be installed by one person

Whole Foods Markets use the powerful cleaning of the T&S hose reel to clean slicing equipment, rinse stainless steel worktables and countertops and hose down floors.

T&S hose reels are available with a number of options to build the ideal solution for any installation, including hose length and diameter choices, mounting bracket options, a variety of available outlet devices, choice of open or close reel design, and stainless steel or epoxy-coated reels.

The plumbing contractor reports that the markets have had no issues with the hose reels since installation, requiring no return visits.
